

The present organization of CPERI's activities into business units/laboratories, each of which represents a distinct cost centers is shown in Figure. The different areas of expertise of CPERI's researchers are reflected in the distribution of Research Laboratories, which represent the fundamental, operating units of the Institute, headed by their respective Laboratory Directors. In addition a "cross-cutting" unit provides state-of-the-art analytical instrumentation support to the research laboratories and a "horizontal" business unit, hosts research activities with external collaborators as well as serves as an incubator/reception for new and collaborative research activities among the Laboratories. Each business unit is represented in the Institute's steering committee.
